Poetry from Fernando Pessoa's The Book of Disquiet. Translated by Richard Zenith.

General

The notation used in this piece does not fully represent the final sonic result. In this sense, the performers are invited to explore the complexity of sound production in his/her instrument in order to obtain a broad sonority, even within the boundaries implied by the notation. The players are encouraged to engage in a creative process of performance construction. A recording mockup is provided in case the conductor finds it interesting for preparation.

- Instrumentation: violin, viola, violoncello, double bass, and piano.

- senza vibrato: use no vibrato during the entire piece.

- Microtones: from left-to-right, top-to-bottom: quarter-tone higher, three quarter-tones higher, quarter-tone lower.

- Tremolos must be played as a texture; i.e. as regular and as fast as possible.

Strings

- Harmonics: notation indicates the stop position in normal notehead and the harmonic finger placement as diamond notehead.

- Bow placement: st for sul tasto (near fingerboard), sp for sul ponticello (near bridge), and norm. for normale position.

- Ord. / ordinario and is used to stop the previous technique.

- punta d'arco: tip of the bow, for more controlled tremolo dynamics.

- col legno battuto: strike notes with the wood part of the bow.

- Flautato: type of sound occurred when extremely light bowing is applied, independently of bow placement (sp, st, etc.).

It is used mostly to get overtones. As a consequence, the notated pitch (fundamental) acts only as an action instruction, i.e. the real sound (overtones) is not represented through the notation.

- Strings: ic. (1st string, highest); iic. (2nd string); iiiic. (3rd string); ivc. (4th string, lowest).

- Bow circular movement

- On the bridge: white noise kind of sound. Achieved by bowing diagonally on the bridge.

Piano

Damp: play key while the other hand damps the string near the respective agraffe. The resulting sonority is 50% pitch and 50% resonance.

@PIN: nail/plectrum glissandi at strings between tuning pin and agraffe. The notation only indicates the gesture, as the real pitches do not match the given notation.

Scratch: granular noise sonority from the pressure of a coin/plectrum across the strings' coils. All instances of this technique are meant to draw its gestural from the dynamics, i.e. sforzando means a rapid stroke, while piano / mezzo piano is a gentle travel along the string coins. All sonorities are mobile, i.e. it is expected different

This musical score page contains five staves. The top four staves are grouped by a brace and include parts for Violin (Vln.), Viola (Vla.), Cello (Vc.), and Double Bass (Cb.). The bottom staff is for the Piano (Pno.). Measure 30 begins with sustained notes from the Vln. and Vla. followed by eighth-note patterns. The Cb. and Pno. also play sustained notes. Dynamic markings 'pp' appear above the Vln. and Vla. staves, and 'mp' appears below the Cb. staff. In the next measure, the Vln. and Vla. continue their eighth-note patterns, while the Cb. and Pno. play sustained notes. The Pno. staff features a dynamic marking 'mf' over a sixteenth-note pattern and 'p' over a sustained note. The score concludes with a bracketed instruction '(—)' and the word 'Rédo.'.
